

Why Am I Here? Where Am I Going? A Life Quest.

By Frank, Your Computer Tutor/Mentor

Whether you own a Mac or a PC, having a near cataclysmic computer issue can lead you to ponder some fundamental answers: Why am I here? What is my purpose? Where am I going?

These are life's "profound questions." How these questions are answered determines how we see the world and how treat ourselves and others. So, where's a good place to begin our search to resolve these elemental questions?

For a start, go to Dogpile.com or Webcrawler.com and enter "Your Meaning of Life Question" into the "search" field. Dogpile and Webcrawler peruse-through Goodle and the other main search engines so you don't have to, thus cutting your search time in half (1/2). Refdesk.com/newsrch.html#service reveals specialized search engines, listed by services.

Possibly, you'll find your god, religion and enlightenment at: Dmoz.org/Society/Religion\_and\_Spirituality - every belief system is listed there, in depth, to discover or explore further.

Find several free web-based encyclopedias at: libraryspot.com/encyclopedias.htm Wikipedia.org enables you to become part of revisionist history. Wikipedia is a web-based, free content encyclopedia project that has approximately 7.5 million articles in 253 languages, that can be edited by anyone with access to the Internet. Wow!

Everything2.com offers you and the entire Web world a huge amount of original writing of many kinds. You can find informative articles on just about anything you can imagine and other things that are simply hard to categorize. LibrarySpot.com is a vast, free virtual library resource center for educators and students, librarians and their patrons, families, businesses and just about anyone exploring the Web for valuable research information.

Maybe Life's Meaning can be found in the "BLOGS". What is a blog? Technically, a blog - short for web log - is a series of posts arranged in chronological order. Most blogs are created with readers in mind with an ideology of building a lively-interactive community. Weblogs.about.com explains the "Blogger's World" and how to blog for fun or profit. Why not immerse yourself in unconventional thought or express inner-yourself to millions on the internet? Try these Blog search engines: technorati.com blogsearchengine.com icerocket.com

Here's where to find what other folks know about you:
